MICHAEL STARZYNSKI
CHIEF TECHNOLOGY OFFICER

Toronto, Canada - Michael Starzynski brings to Marketwire more than 25 years of senior IT experience from across several industry verticals including the telecommunications, financial and entertainment industries. As a member of the Marketwire Executive Team, Michael is responsible for developing strategy and setting direction for the Company's technological future, including the creation of innovative workflow solutions designed to meet client needs.

Most recently Michael served as CTO of Cryptologic, a publicly traded international leader in the online entertainment and gaming industries. At Cryptologic he led a team of developers and engineers building and overseeing five global data centers that delivered high-availability and top-level resiliency, introduced a new development deployment methodology that enabled record number of new product rollouts, and oversaw the development and implementation of back-office systems that delivered real-time reporting and managed global payment processing. The company saw its revenues grow and its global presence expand tremendously during Michael's tenure. Prior to Cryptologic, Michael was CTO at Financial Models Company, a technology solutions company that provided comprehensive investment management systems and services to the international investment management industry. In this role Michael led a team of 170 and was actively focused on strengthening the company's global client relationships by ensuring technology solutions met their needs in the demanding investment management industry. Prior to his time at FMC, Michael's experience was in system architecture and development in large enterprise environments including CGI and Bell Canada. Michael holds a Bachelor of Computer Science from York University in Toronto complemented by executive leadership courses and experience over the years.
